Learning Outcomes

This course will equip you with the knowledge and skills to work as a professional counsellor. You will be able to:

- establish and maintain positive relationships with clients from all backgrounds
- apply a range of proven therapy techniques to assist individuals and groups on matters related to personal and psychological wellbeing
- apply the principles of structured, impartial, non-judgemental, respectful counselling
- recognise and respond appropriately to crisis situations, and to evidence of family violence, parenting stress, mental health issues and child harm
- confidently and respectfully refer clients to other services when necessary
- understand the legal and ethical requirements and professional practise
- work effectively within a case management framework.

- Graduates may be eligible to undertake further qualifications at advanced diploma or graduate diploma level.

Entry Requirements

Priority will be given to people with a background in health, community services or education and to those already providing services to support communities and individuals in either a volunteer or paid capacity.

All applicants are required to undertake a suitability interview with the course coordinator.

Employment Opportunities

Graduates will be qualified to work in counsellor, case manager, support and liaison roles in community, education, healthcare, government and private sector organisations.

Students may be eligible for student membership of PACFA (Psychotherapy and Counselling Federation of Australia). See PACFA website for further details.

The Federal Government estimates that the demand for workers with counselling qualifications will be very strong over the next 5 years. See joboutlook.gov.au
