

Diploma of Financial Counselling CHC51122 | Mid Year 2024/25

This is an online course with required participation in synchronous online tutorials and workshops.

Overview

This qualification reflects the role of generalist financial counsellors who work in agencies that meet the requirements for exemptions from holding both an Australian Financial Services Licence (ASIC legislative instrument 2017/792 and Regulation 7.1.04CAA(5)(9) of the Corporations Regulations 2001) and an Australian Credit Licence (ASIC legislative instrument 2017/793). Financial counsellors work across a variety of metropolitan, regional and remote settings. Generalist financial counsellors can assist both individuals and small businesses.

All financial counsellors have specialist knowledge of legal remedies and options to manage debt and financial difficulty and are advocates who work in a model of social justice and client empowerment.

This qualification is not related to the work performed by financial planners or financial advisers who provide clients with strategies to address their investment options and require a financial services licence for their work under the National Consumer Credit Protection Act 2010. This qualification is also not appropriate for financial capability workers.

This qualification does not refer to therapeutic counselling. However, a recognition of and an ability to work within a counselling framework and how other issues may interact with financial issues is highly relevant to financial counselling practice. Psychological issues affecting individuals, families and groups, such as gambling, substance abuse, child abuse and mental or physical health problems, require informed responses from financial counsellors to coordinate multiple service requirements and referral to appropriate professional support.

Work Placement Requirements

To achieve this qualification, students must have completed at least 220 hours of work as detailed in the relevant assessment requirements of the units of competency.
